Juror: Allan Buitekant has been involved in the visual arts since 1952 in New York City when he began his career in creativity at the Doyle, Dane, Bernbach Advertising Agency where creative history was made. As Creative Director he worked with some of the most famous photographers of the twentieth century including Richard Avedon. His exposure to great photography on an everyday basis led him to study photography under the tutelage of the best photographers in New York City. He developed a style that manifests itself in the two years he spent in Europe where many of his photographs are found in private collections. Although a devoted potter he still takes photographs.
